1 Mapping Cross-Gender Connectedness

In this Appendix we provide additional maps of CGFR. The maps below include additional regions for the world not presented in Figure 3, and provide higher-resolution maps of the regions presented in Figure 3. All maps are presented in two different color scales: the first is a constant linear scale across the entire world (referred to as unified), and the second colors subnational geographies based on their relative within-region decile of CGFR (referred to as decile). The unified color scale allows for easier cross-country comparisons, while the decile-based color scale allows for within-region differences to be highlighted.
