Disclosure Statement for Anirban Sengupta

Regarding

Airline Pricing, Price Dispersion, and Ticket Characteristics

On and Off the Internet

1. Financial Support
    a. I have received financial support for this project from Network, Electronic Commerce and Telecommunications (NET) Institute, NYU through a competitive process. There has been no other financial support for me.
2. Research Support
    a. I want to thank Barry Smith and Jo Ann Muzny for providing the data for research.
3. I have not received financial support from any individual, group, or organization that has a financial, ideological, or political stake related to the research questions and results addressed in this paper. I am a Senior Demand Planner at Amazon Corporate LLC, where I work on developing forecasting models for Kindle devices. I have not undertaken any research on the topics covered in this paper, which includes the pricing and sale of airline tickets on and off the internet, in connection with my work at Amazon, and I have not had discussions with others and I am unaware of any such work that may or may not be ongoing within Amazon.
4. As indicated above I am a Senior Demand Planner with Amazon but I am unaware of any policy positions, goals or financial interests regarding the topics of this paper.
5. I know of no relatives and have no partners who have a financial interest regarding the topics addressed in this paper.
6. No third party had the right to review this paper prior to its circulation or publication.