Disclosure Statements

Johannes Abeler

I have not received significant financial support from an interested party in the last three years.

I have not had any paid or unpaid positions as officer, director, or board member of relevant non-profit organizations or profit-making entities.

I received financial support related to this article from the ESRC (the UK equivalent to the NSF) via grant RES-194-23-0013. We acknowledge this support in the article.

No other party – beyond my coauthor – had the right to review the paper prior to its circulation.

The experiments described in this article were run at the School of Economics at the University of Nottingham by me and a research assistant and all necessary ethical approvals were obtained from the School's Research Ethics Committee prior to the research.

Simon Jäger

I have not received significant financial support from an interested party in the last three years.

I have not had any paid or unpaid positions as officer, director, or board member of relevant non-profit organizations or profit-making entities.

I did not receive financial support related to this article.

No other party – beyond my coauthor – had the right to review the paper prior to its circulation.

As part of this project, I did not work with individually-identifiable, private information so my involvement was considered not to be human subjects research by Harvard University's Committee on the Use of Human Subjects.