"Discretionary Tax Changes and the Macroeconomy: New Narrative Evidence from the United Kingdom"

James S. Cloyne

Disclosure Statement

The author declares that he has no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.

The author is currently employed at the Bank of England. However, this work was conducted at University College London before the author joined the Bank of England. The views expressed in this paper are therefore those of the author and do not necessarily reflect those of the Bank of England.

Managers at the Bank of England read this paper before publication. However, the Bank of England does not reserve editorial rights over the content of this article.

The author received sponsorship from CESifo to present this paper at their Money, Macro and International Finance conference.